ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An intelligent method for allowing access to a computer files includes posing questions to a user. The questions are designed in accordance with the user's information, such as birthday, prior consumption data, and the user's information is designed via different transferring methods to increase the privacy of the question. Therefore, any hackers will have difficulty to find the correct answer to the question.